CHURCHMEN ARRAIGN EXCISE COMMISSION

Episcopal Convention Calls Upon It to Use Its Powers.

STRONG

Demand That Law Be Enforced to-day. as Police, Not as Revenue Measure.

The Protestant Episcopal convention of the diocese of New York in its final sion vesterday attacked the adminissession yesterday attacked the administration of the State Excise Commission and called for the enforcement of the liquor law as a police and not merely as a revenue measure. The convention set, forth its position as follows:

It is the duty of the State Excise Commissioners to enforce all the provisions of the law to prevent abuses in the sale of liquor. It is his obligation to see that liquor is not sold by certificate holders or their agents on Sundays or during prohibited hours, or to minors, that the bars are exposed to view during certain hours and days, that no gambling or disorderly conduct is permitted. The Commissioner has a force of special agents to secure evidence, and when secured jt is his duty to seek revocation of the certificate and recovery of the bond.

The detectives would not say whether or not they had obtained conclusive proof to their theory of Wednesday, that the body of a man had been shipped from New York in the same trunk which contained the body of the murdered woman. The second body had not been found up to last night.

There seems to be no doubt but that the woman victim was Grace Carbone, a white slave, who was a friend of Jennie Cavalieri, the white slave informant who was killed near Bridgeport a few weeks ago. Grace Carbone is known to have come to New York immediately after her friend's murder, fearful of her life. When the police arrest the men who committed the Carbone murder they bedieve they will find them to be Hartford Jimmie Lewis and Big Andrew Capone, two of the five murderers of the Cavalieri two of the five murderers of the Cavalieri two of the five murderers and would be same trunk which contained the body of the murdered woman. Speaking particularly of conditions in this city the convention said:

We recognize and deplore the appalling drink. Apart from this, the saloon, con-sidered strictly as a social institution, stands as one of the most destructive foes which the Church has to face. Some effective means should be devised to abolish the back room of the saloon.

It is here that our young people are schooled in vice and crime; here the vicious lawless "gangs" are fostered and perpetuated; here the gambler, white slaver and the corrupt politician consort. To offset the social infection of these vicious offset the social infection of these vicious dens, the Church should equip herself to provide every consistent recreational and social privilege that can compete with their corrupting ministrations.

Much can be accomplished by wise and judicious provision for a wider use of the public school plants. Effort should be made to prevail upon the proper authorities.

judicious provision for a wider use of the public school plants. Effort should be made to prevail upon the proper authorities to open the school buildings for the fullest possible use by the public; they should be made centres of social and civic recreational interests. In recognition of the value of the public lectures now provided by the Board of Education, we would recommend that these lectures be scheduled not only for week day evenings, but for Sunday afternoons and evenings as well—since it is en Sunday that the throngs of the crowded districts might be most benefited by these advantages.

The chairman of the commission making the report upon which the convention acted was the Rev. Dr. A. G. Cummins of Christ Church, Poughkeepsie, Other members included Mayor John K. Sague of Poughkeepsie, John M. Glenn of the Sage Foundation, R. Fulton Cutting, the Rev. Dr. John P. Peters of St. Michael's Church and Arthur A. Michell of Staten Island.

MURDERERS HIDE IN NEW YORK. Connecticut Police Investigating Trunk Crime Come to This City.

Connecticut State police, working on the Georgetown trunk murder, cleared up the last of the evidence at Georgetown where the murdered woman's body was found in a mill pond Saturday, and came down to New York yesterday. The New York police, who have been trying to trace the movements of the trunk prior to the time it was delivered to the Adams Express Company in this city last Friday, also completed their preliminary work o the case. Several arrests are expected

Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty would not say what the evi-dence is. It was surmised, however, from the presence of a small army of Connecticut State police in town that the murderer or murderers have been traced to New York.

The detectives would not say whether

Stirred by the charge made by Francis Lynde Stetson that the Episcopal Church was fiddling when it ought to be working the convention voted to spend $200,000 a year for church extension in New York suburbs and in Hudson River counties in the next five years, or $1,000,000 in all, provided the money can be obtained.

The money is to be used not merely for new churches but also for work among Italians and other foreign speaking peoples. On the floor of the convention were several Italian Episcopal clergymen, who reported that Italians were going into Protestant churches in steadily increasing numbers.

The manuscript was stolen from an express wagon. The Metropolitan offered to reimburse Mildenberg for nis actual loss in a sum which the opera company deemed sufficient.

The attorneys for the opera company said yesterday that the sum Mildenberg will get as a result of the jury's verdict is "considerably less" than was offered before the trial.

CHAMPAGNE BAPTIZES SEWER. Digging Caused Fear of Water

Famine in Brooklyn.

The new $3,000,000 sewer system in Richmond Hill, L. I., was dedicated yesterday afternoon by Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, who poured the contents of a quart bottle at Rockaway road and Panama street.

By an inverted syphon the sewage is made to run under the conduit which supplies all of Brooklyn with its drinking water. The conduit is composed of four parts, one of which, made of brick, was built sixty years ago. The contractors were badly frightened when they came to digging under this old conduit.

Joseph Sigretto, the contractor, said he realized that should the old brick conduit be undermined and a break occur not only would many of his laborers be killed but Brooklyn would experience a water famine that might last for weeks. By an inverted syphon the sewage is

Worse, Raymond has gone back to his old field in the Ridgewood section of Brooklyn and already, one burglary is laid against him by the police. There nothing definite to show that the Cherub, as the boy has often been called, did this latest trick except that it looks like his work and he has been seen in the neighborhood, but the police, with a large respect for Raymond's imagination and daring, are inclined to blame him for anything wrong that happens within miles

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Following his election to the presidency of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Samuel Rea will take a short vacation before he as sumes the affairs of office on January 1 An interest closely identified with the Pennsylvania system said to-day that there would be no announcement of President Rea's plans until the annual meeting of the stockholders in March, but there is reason to think that additional improvements to the Pennsylvania system to the extent of $40,000,000 will be authorized.

The electrification of all its suburban lines that use the Broad street station is to be one of the next steps toward making the Pennsylvania system modern in every particular.

Mr. Rea has had this matter under consideration for a long time, and being one of the great railroad engineers of the present day his friends say that some of his plans will astonish even practical railroad men who were amazed when A.
